6. RISK DISCLOSURE

Trading foreign exchange on margin carries a high level of risk, and may not be suitable for all investors. The high degree of leverage can work against you as well as for you. Before deciding to trade/invest in foreign exchange you should carefully consider your investment objectives, level of experience, and risk appetite. The possibility exists that you could sustain a loss of some or all of your initial investment and therefore you should not invest money that you cannot afford to lose. You should be aware of all the risks associated with foreign exchange trading, and seek advice from an independent financial advisor if you have any doubts.

Gearing (or Leverage): This term refers to the fact that spread betting/forex trading allows the client to buy (or sell) a financial product/contract with substantially less money than the actual full market value of that financial product/contract. So gearing is the correlation between potential profit or loss against initial deposit/margin. A highly geared or leveraged bet involves substantial risk to your money (but also gives the possibility of high returns), typically most firms offer 100:1 which means with £1000 you can have exposure to the movements in prices of a position equal to £100,000 (100x).
